DOTHANEAGLE

WHERE YOUR STORY LIVES = Monday, July 14, 2025 dothaneagle.com

TEXAS FLOODING

HEAVY RAINS PAUSE SEARCH FOR VICTIMS

Rain falls over a makeshift memorial for flood victims Sunday along the Guadalupe River in Kerrville, Texas.

Evacuations ordered amid new threat of high waters

Associated Press

KERRVILLE, Texas — More heavy rains in Texas on Sunday temporarily paused a weeklong search for victims of catastrophic flooding along the Guadalupe River and led to high-water rescues elsewhere as officials warned that the downpours could again cause waterways to surge.

It was the first time a new round of severe weather had paused the search since the July 4 floods, which killed at least 129 people. Authorities believe more than 160 people may still be missing in Kerr County alone, and 10 more in neighboring areas.

In Kerrville, where local officials have come under scrutiny over the failure to adequately warn residents about the rising water in the early-morning hours of July 4, authorities went door-to-door to some homes after midnight early Sunday to alert people that flooding was again possible. Authorities also pushed phone alerts to those in the area.

During the pause in searches, Ingram Fire Department officials ordered crews to immediately evacuate the Guadalupe River corridor in Kerr County, warning the potential for a flash flood is high.

Late Sunday afternoon, the Kerr County Sheriff's Office announced that search teams in the western part of that county could resume their efforts. The Ingram Fire Department would resume their searchand-rescue efforts Monday morning, said agency spokesman Brian Lochte.

Latest flooding damages dozens of homes

Gov. Greg Abbott said on X that the state was making rescues in San Saba, Lampasas and Schleicher counties and that evacuations were taking place in a handful of others. Texas Task Force 1, a joint state and federal urban search and rescue team, had rescued dozens of people in the Lampasas area, Abbott said.

The latest round of flooding damaged about 100 homes and knocked down untold lengths of cattle fencing, said Ashley Johnson, CEO of the Hill Country Community Action Association, a San Saba-based "Anything you can imagine in a rural community was damaged," she said. "Our blessing is it was daylight and we knew it was coming."

With more rain on the way, county officials ordered everyone living in floodprone areas near the San Saba River to evacuate. Johnson said people were being moved to the San Saba Civic Center, which has become a safe, high place for people to receive aid and shelter.

"Everyone is in some way personally affected by this," she said. "Everyone is just doing what they can to help their neigh-

Wide-ranging weather system brings heavy rains

The weather system brought multiple rounds of heavy rains and slow-moving storms across a widespread area, pushing rivers and streams over their banks. Heading into the afternoon and evening, the heaviest rains were expected along the I-35 corridor and east, said meteorologist Patricia Sanchez from the National Weather Service's Fort Worth office.

Please see TEXAS. Page A2

'Just a mom' on a mission: Blessing Box brings hope and help to community

SKYLAR CELESTE BOONE sboone@dothaneagle.com

In a quiet corner of the Wiregrass, a simple wooden box is changing lives — and it all started hope to those facing food insecurity. with a mom who just wanted to Stocked with nonperishable items, help. Stephanie Christy started the Blessing Box just a few weeks ago, and it has taken off.

"I am just a mom who wants to help the community however I can," said Christy.

But her actions speak volumes. Stephanie is the heart behind a local "Blessing Box," a community food and hygiene pantry offering meal kits, hygiene bags and even Biprinciple: take what you need, give what you can.

The Blessing Box is located at 1433 Decatur Rd. in Cottonwood.

"The mission behind the Blessing Box is to help those in need of food security but also to give people hope that people do care, and if we all work together, we can help so many," said Christy. "My hope is that this ministry goes far beyond bles, the box operates on one simple me and our community. That others can see how something so simple can make such a huge impact."

Please see BOX, Page A2

Stocked with nonperishable items, meal kits, hygiene bags and even Bibles, the box operates on one simple principle: take what you need, give what you can.