THE MILLION-DOLLAR QUESTION

City mum on whether FIFA coughed up 'insignificant' legacy funds from the billions they reaped during World Cup PAGE 3

The city and province spent around $700 million to get Vancouver ready to host seven World Cup games. FIFA, which made billions from the tournament, is reputed to have offered $1 million for "legacy" projects — an amount a Concordia University economist calls a "rounding error."
