Greg Bovino has been waiting nine months for this.

As Border Patrol commander, he became the swaggering face of President Donald Trump's street-level immigration sweeps, leading agents through Los Angeles, Chicago and, finally, Minneapolis, where the killing of two U.S. citizens by federal officers in January sparked national outcry, set off a political storm and ended his time in the field. The average cost of Thanksgiving dinner nationally is 6.3% higher this year, compared to last year, according to a new report from the American Farm Bureau Federation, but the main dish will be cheaper at least in Florida.

The good news for consumers in the Sunshine State is that turkey prices in Florida are down from a year ago, according to the Florida Farm Bureau Federation. The Gainesville-based group issued its annual cost of Thanksgiving report Wednesday, the same day as the national organization.

"Grocery stores often feature whole turkeys at lower prices leading up to Thanksgiving," Florida Farm Bureau Federation spokeswoman Rachael Smith told USA TODAY Network-Florida. "The average price of a frozen 16-pound turkey in Florida (the second week of November) was $19.03 as compared to $27.16 in 2025."
