Salisbury launches interactive crime map

Keith Demko
Salisbury Daily Times | USA TODAY NETWORK – DELMARVA

Searching for a way to keep track of what kinds of crimes are occurring in Salisbury? The city has just launched an interactive tool to let you do exactly that.

Salisbury has launched the 28-Day Crime Viewer, an interactive online tool that empowers the public to explore incidents responded to by the Salisbury Police Department over the past four weeks.

Through an intuitive map overlaid with a grid of Salisbury's neighborhoods, users can click any grid cell to view a detailed breakdown of incident types — such as thefts, burglaries, assaults, and more — that occurred within that area during the 28-day window. This feature provides both broad trends and street-level insights, enhancing public situational awareness and safety preparedness, according to the city's release.

As part of its safety awareness initiative, the city also offers the following tips to help residents protect themselves and their property:

- Lock vehicles and remove valuables.
- Keep homes and outbuildings locked and well-lit.
- Stay aware of your surroundings and avoid poorly lit areas at night.
- Call 911 immediately in the event of an emergency.

The 28-Day Crime Viewer is available at: <https://gis.salisbury.md/portal/apps/dashboards/a4fda674d2f845fdb2b7ad42cfb7405>

Dems, Trump at odds over funding

Zachary Schermele
USA TODAY

WASHINGTON – With each passing day on Capitol Hill, a government shutdown is looking more likely.

Time is running out for Democrats and Republicans in Congress to strike a compromise, and neither side appears to be budging in a debate where partisan gridlock could lead to the closing of everything but essential government services. Funding expires at midnight on Oct. 1, and lawmakers have a planned vacation for one of the next two weeks tied to the Jewish holidays.

For the first time since March, Democrats have a significant political advantage over President Donald Trump. Senate rules require Republicans to get at least some Democratic votes to pass a budget and
