Here’s some business news for western Montana:

It looks like there’ll be a third location for the popular Tagliare Delicatessen sandwich shop in Missoula.

The University of Montana and Tagliare announced that a new location will open on campus on Monday, Aug. 24, in the University Center Food Court, which is on the second floor.

Known for their locally baked Le Petit bread and sandwiches named after legendary music groups, Tagliare also has a location next to Grizzly Grocery at 1433 S. Higgins and a second location at 910 Wyoming St. They also have a Spokane shop.

Madeline’s Mediterranean Grill has opened a new restaurant in Stevensville at 101 Church St. It’s their first brick-and-mortar location after operating a food truck in Missoula for many years. They’ll still use the food truck for catering. Owner Michael Owens told the Ravalli Republic that they have Lebanese specialties, since his grandmother is from Lebanon, but they have all kinds of Middle Eastern foods as well.

Speaking of Stevensville, a new restaurant called Stubborn Steer BBQ has announced they’re opening soon in the former Amor & Tacos location, next to Subway, just off Highway 93.
