DOVER — The City Council recently approved a camera security system for the new Nebi Park pavilion, despite privacy concerns raised by a minority of council members.

The public pavilion in the 3-acre Nebi Park in the Waterfront District will officially open July 14, according to Mayor Dennis Shanahan. The council authorized the security system for the public pavilion to protect the city and public's investment, according to City Manager Michael Joyal. The cameras and equipment cost $32,000 and wiring is an additional $32,000, for a total project cost of $64,000, Shanahan said.

Joyal said the security system is "to monitor for any inappropriate" activities, "vandalism, graffiti, whatever that occur at that facility."

PORTSMOUTH — The sweet sound of summer music in the park is on its way. For 20 glorious evenings, new voices, familiar favorites and some of the most important voices in music today will fill Prescott Park in one joyful house party that will last into September.

Pull up a blanket or a chair on the park's lawn on the banks of the Piscataqua River for the Prescott Park Arts Festival summer concert series, one of the city's beloved traditions.

"There is truly nothing like gathering together as a community each summer in the beauty of Prescott Park," said Courtney Perkins, executive director of the Prescott Park Arts Festival, in a statement. "These concerts are intimate, and unlike anything you'll experience at any other venue. ... A love of music, of this park, of this community — that is something we all hold in common."

This year's concert series will bring the harmonizing of duos, trios and siblings to the park's stage, some toe-tapping Americana and folk music, some high-energy rock and soul, and some of the best songwriting of the music scene.

Here's a look at the performers for summer 2026:

PORTSMOUTH — The city — and Vaughan Mall — are slated to receive a gift of art from its siter city Santarcangelo, Italy, to help illuminate the city's iconic downtown venue, according to city officials.

"The artwork, created by Italian artist Tiziano Corbelli, consists of illuminated script displaying the poem 'The Air' by Tonino Guerra in both English and Italian," according to Sean Clancy, Portsmouth's assistant city manager for economic and community development. "The installation is proposed for Vaughan Mall and would consist of suspended light elements arranged overhead."

"Based on materials provided and discussions with the artist, the artwork is designed to complement the ongoing Vaughan Mall improvements and
