PORTSMOUTH — The new owner of the former Portsmouth Brewery building on Market Street plans to open a restaurant at the prime downtown site.

Mark Gianniny of Portsmouth Architects, who represented Party of Five Hospitality LLC at a recent city Historic District Commission meeting, stated the owner is "looking to keep the program elements or the use basically similar" as the former brewery.

"It's going to be a restaurant on the main floor with a lounge downstairs, as well as support space," including a kitchen, he said. "Then the second and third floor will remain two residential units as it has been."

Party of Five Hospitality LLC bought the 1870-era 56 Market St. property, which formerly housed the brewery and its restaurant, for $3 million on June 30. The property was most recently appraised at $3,365,200, according to city records.
