Abortion center hit with DOH order for cleanliness concern

A Cherry Hill abortion center has "significant deficiencies in nursing services and infection control practices" that indicate "a serious risk to patient safety," according to the New Jersey Department of Health.

On April 30, agency officials imposed a "directed plan of correction" on the Cherry Hill Women's Center. It ordered the Kings Highway facility to retain a full-time consultant director of nursing to oversee improvements there.

DOH staffers found the shortcomings during a review of the facility's operations for its federal recertification and its state relicensure.

The problems represented "systemic breakdowns in leadership, regulatory compliance and patient safety safeguards," a DOH official said in a letter to the center's executive director.

A Cherry Hill Women's Center representative could not be reached for immediate comment.

Among deficiencies tied to infection control, the DOH reported a failure to clean and disinfect the center's operating room at the level required by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The letter also cited failures to perform adequate hand hygiene under CDC guidelines and to failure ensure that "patient care equipment and environmental surfaces were properly cleaned and disinfected between patients."

And it alleged "widespread noncompliance" with professional standards for sterilizing equipment, as well as a failure to follow manufacturer instructions for the use of cleaning solutions and "high-level" disinfectants.

"These deficiencies contributed to Immediate Jeopardy findings related to sterilization and infection control processes, indicating a serious risk to patient safety," said the letter from Gene Rosenblum, director of the Office of Program Compliance at DOH.

Rosenblum's letter also said nursing services were flawed by the failure to remove expired supplies from active inventory.

He noted the lack of an employee-evaluation policy and ordered the center to hire a registered nurse "to ensure nursing services were appropriately led."

That position would be separate from the consultant director of nursing. The consultant director is to serve at least 40 hours per week and provide weekly reports until DOH officials say they are no longer needed, and they're to be hired by May 6.

Rosenblum noted that the women's center can contest the order before the New Jersey Office of Administrative Law.

But he said the order would not be stayed during an appeal because of "the emergent situation and the immediate and serious risk of harm posed to the patients."

Stockton campus to host debate featuring 4 Dems running for Congress

Joseph P. Smith
Cherry Hill Courier-Post
USA TODAY NETWORK – NEW JERSEY

Four candidates in the 2nd Congressional District's Democratic primary election have agreed to a debate May 20 on the campus of Stockton University in Galloway Township.

Stockton's William J. Hughes Center for Public Policy and the Press of Atlantic City are cosponsors.

Participation was restricted to candidates who met the minimum campaign finance threshold for having to file fundraising reports. Tim Alexander, Zack Mullock, Terri Reese, and Bayly Winder all met that requirement, according to the university.

The debate is to have two moderators: Alyssa Maurice, the center's assistant director and a media representative.

It's to take place before a live audience starting at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center Event Room at 101 Vera King Farris Drive. There are plans to livestream the event.

Questions from the public are being accepted ahead of the event. To submit questions for the debate, or to request more information, email hughes-center@stockton.edu.

U.S. Rep. Jeff Van Drew, R-Cape May, is the incumbent. He's running without opposition in the Republican primary.

All the Democratic candidates have campaign websites with their personal and professional backgrounds and position statements.
