How Dorsainvil became a lifeline for area Haitians

Viles Dorsainvil, co-founder and executive director of the Haitian Community Help and Support Center, in his office in Springfield on Oct. 6. "We cannot give up. We just cannot give up," Dorsainvil said of his organization's work. JOSEPH COOKE / STAFF

As Springfield's Haitian community faces mounting uncertainty following the expiration of temporary protected status, local leaders are stepping up to guide families through a wave of new bureaucratic hurdles. Among them is Viles Dorsainvil, co-founder of the Haitian Community Help and Support Center, who has become a frontline voice and advocate for his community. A4
