

TEXAS FLOODING

HEAVY RAINS PAUSE
SEARCH FOR VICTIMS

ERIC GAY, ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain falls over a makeshift memorial for flood victims Sunday along the Guadalupe River in Kerrville, Texas.

Evacuations ordered amid new threat of high waters

GABRIELA AOUN
Associated Press

KERRVILLE, Texas — More heavy rains in Texas on Sunday temporarily paused a weeklong search for victims of catastrophic flooding along the Guadalupe River and led to high-water rescues elsewhere as officials warned that the downpours could again cause waterways to surge.

It was the first time a new round of severe weather had paused the search since the July 4 floods, which killed at least 129 people. Authorities believe more than 160 people may still be missing in Kerr County alone, and 10 more in neighboring areas.

In Kerrville, where local officials have come under scrutiny over the failure to adequately warn residents about the rising water in the early-morning hours of July 4, authorities went door-to-door to some homes after midnight early Sunday to alert people that flooding was again possible. Authorities also pushed phone alerts to those in the area.

During the pause in searches, Ingram Fire Department officials ordered crews to immediately evacuate the Guadalupe River corridor in Kerr County, warning the potential for a flash flood is high.

Late Sunday afternoon, the Kerr County Sheriff’s Office announced that search teams in the western part of that county could resume their efforts. The Ingram Fire Department would resume their search-and-rescue efforts Monday morning, said agency spokesman Brian Lochte.

Latest flooding damages
dozens of homes

Gov. Greg Abbott said on X that the state was making rescues in San Saba, Lampasas and Schleicher counties and that evacuations were taking place in a handful of others. Texas Task Force 1, a joint state and federal urban search and rescue team, had rescued dozens of people in the Lampasas area, Abbott said.

The latest round of flooding damaged about 100 homes and knocked down untold lengths of cattle fencing, said Ashley Johnson, CEO of the Hill Country Community Action Association, a San Saba-based nonprofit.

“Anything you can imagine in a rural community was damaged,” she said. “Our blessing is it was daylight and we knew it was coming.”

With more rain on the way, county officials ordered everyone living in flood-prone areas near the San Saba River to evacuate. Johnson said people were being moved to the San Saba Civic Center, which has become a safe, high place for people to receive aid and shelter.

“Everyone is in some way personally affected by this,” she said. “Everyone is just doing what they can to help their neighbors.”

Wide-ranging weather system brings heavy rains

The weather system brought multiple rounds of heavy rains and slow-moving storms across a widespread area, pushing rivers and streams over their banks. Heading into the afternoon and evening, the heaviest rains were expected along the I-35 corridor and east, said meteorologist Patricia Sanchez from the National Weather Service’s Fort Worth office.

Please see TEXAS, Page A2

HOLLY HILL TOWN COUNCIL

No tax increase, mayor declares

LEE HENDREN
T&D Correspondent

“We’re not raising rates, millage, or taxes,” Holly Hill Mayor Billy Chavis said during the town council’s monthly meeting on Monday, July 7.

He spoke after the council gave first reading – by title only – to the municipal budget for fiscal year 2025-2026, which will begin on Sept. 1.

The council must hold a public hearing and take a final vote before the budget is official. Dates for those activities have not yet been scheduled.

During public comments time, a resident thanked town officials for providing “a very pleasant evening” of fireworks and celebration on the Fourth of July.

Chavis said the fireworks cost $500 six years ago and $6,000 this year. He has already ordered $8,000 worth for next year.

“It just gets bigger and better each year,” he said, adding that no tax dollars are spent, thanks to generous donations from a handful of sponsoring businesses.

Another resident asked about changes she noticed to the town’s website, particularly on the page with council meeting notices, agendas, and minutes.

Chavis and Police Chief Josh Detter said the website was updated and refreshed to make it more user-friendly.

The Holly Hill Town Council’s next monthly meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 4, in the governmental complex at 8423 Old State Road. For details, contact Town Clerk Shelia Williams at 803-496-3330.