Live like the Dead

Grateful Dead tribute band coming to Sioux Falls

Angela George Sioux Falls Argus Leader | USA TODAY NETWORK

The Grateful Dead never performed in South Dakota during its legendary 30-year career. But the psychedelic phenomom is not lost. Tribute band Dark Star Orchestra, who in its 25 years of music, have already performed more than 1,000 more shows than the Dead ever did. And the group will finally make a trip Sept. 2 to Sioux Falls. Fans might not even know the difference. Dark Star Orchestra (DSO) is famed worldwide as not just a cover band but unwavering in their commitment to the sound, the spirit and the spontaneity that the playful Dead brought to shows decades ago. Not only does the DSO seven-piece band mimic former live shows down to the lighting and instruments used at that time, they take an audience back to each era with nostalgia and a set list that doesn't miss a note.
