Israel responds to deadly rocket attack

Airstrike in Beirut targets Hezbollah commander

WASHINGTON – The Israeli military said Tuesday that it carried out an airstrike in Beirut, the capital of Lebanon, targeting a senior Hezbollah commander responsible for a weekend rocket attack that killed 12 children and teenagers in the Galil mountains.

The fate of the Hezbollah commander was not immediately clear.

A loud blast was heard, and a plume of smoke was seen rising above the southern suburbs, a stronghold of Lebanon's armed group Hezbollah, Reuters reported, citing an account from a witness.

"The (Israeli Defense Forces) carried out a targeted strike in Beirut, on the commander responsible for the murder of the children in Majdal Shams and the killing of numerous additional Israeli civilians," the Israeli military said.

Protesters demonstrate against an investigation into the suspected abuse of a Palestinian detainee by Israeli military reservists, at Beit Lid military compound in northern Israel Tuesday.
